Read this first!

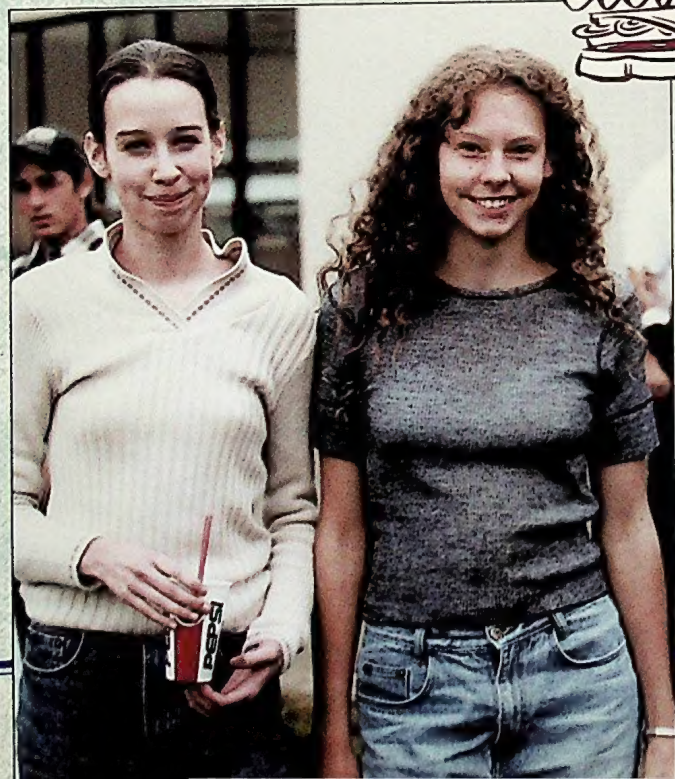

This yearbook, in order to be more interesting, will have some feature articles located in various places. This particular article, because it is only the first one, will not have any real point to it except to inform its readers of the purpose of future writings. These articles similarly, may not have legitimate points, but to perhaps provide extra reading material for those who actually READ their yearbooks. Those of you who are reading this type at the moment, are probably only doing so because it says on the top of it to "read this first". We must apologize now for this article and for any possible inconvenience or waste of time, that it may have caused you or others, and we will be making our best effort to be certain that you waste more of your time in this manner.

Ainlay students show great interest in the act of eating.

Sources say that they will have consumed an inordinate amount by the time they graduate.

Live and Learn....

The second article of the book. (otherwise entitled: "What would happen if a monkey was crossed with a rocket launcher?")

Actually, probably nothing would happen, were a monkey crossed with a rocket launcher, except perhaps that the monkey would retain alot of gas, or the launcher would be inflicted with hairballs. The fact is that modern science hasn't yet advanced to the point of accomplishing this feat, and probably won't until the world finally finds a use for this monstrous beast. History reveals that we very well may, in the future, find a use for it. We, over time, have discovered uses for substances which may have seemed extrenuous items. Until the 1950's, there wasn't a use of, or a need for washing machines. Before the mid 1980 's, computers were merely huge useless blocks of vacuum tubes, which could accomplish virtually nothing, and therefore could not be used. We obviously, since then, have discovered various uses for them. Also, prior to the agricultural revolution, no one had any clue what to do with peat moss. With these types of advancements in reasoning, before the next century, we may have discovered a purpose for mosquitos, but not likely.

Never underestimate a toadstool with a Vision!

High school students are much like toadstools. After this last statement, everyone begins to wonder exactly HOW this is possible. Well: all toadstools can do, is sit around and be poisonous. They serve no purpose in the food chain except to consume the flesh of dead organisms, and they serve no purpose in the general universe, but to collect dust. Can anyone see the similarities? Some students however, who shall remain nameless, have made the decision to not go through life just as toadstools, but to become active. They have a vision, and they use this vision as a guide to achieving their innermost desires. If your innermost desire is something such as , consuming dead flesh, and collecting dust, then perhaps being a toadstool is not so bad, but NEVER underestimate a toadstool with a vision.

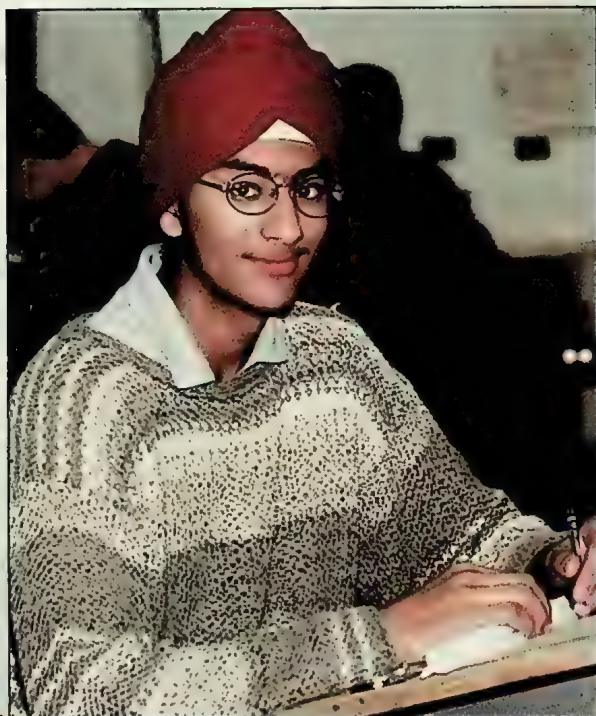

Another pointless article

(which you will probably find to be a complete waste of time to read, or to even have written)

This article is dedicated to this year's Halloween activities. Although not very much happened, the space that this article takes up must be filled with something, and this is it. Actually this is not an article about Halloween, but is merely something to give this particular yearbook a bit of character, and perhaps with it a bit less taste.

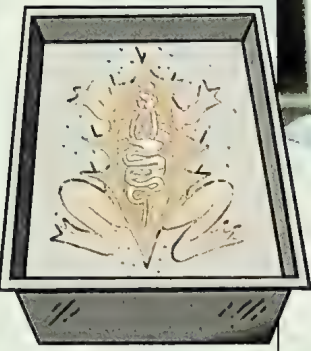

As you flip through these pages, you may reflect upon some of the stupid and/or the ridiculous things that certain people may have done, throughout their high school careers. Dwell on the various good bits of high school, no matter how terribly infrequent, or insignificant they may have been, and remember the humorous things that happened, not the things like: the time a kid broke into your locker and stole all your books, and the time you failed everything but gym.

- Rick Povaschuk

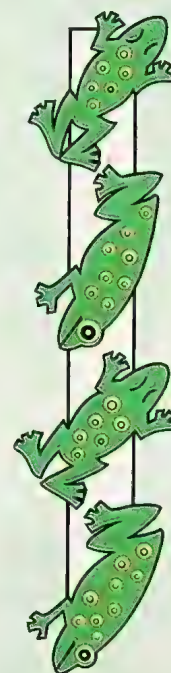

This is the Halloween theme page..... obviously

The amphibian theme page.

(it's too bad that we have no photographs of amphibians)

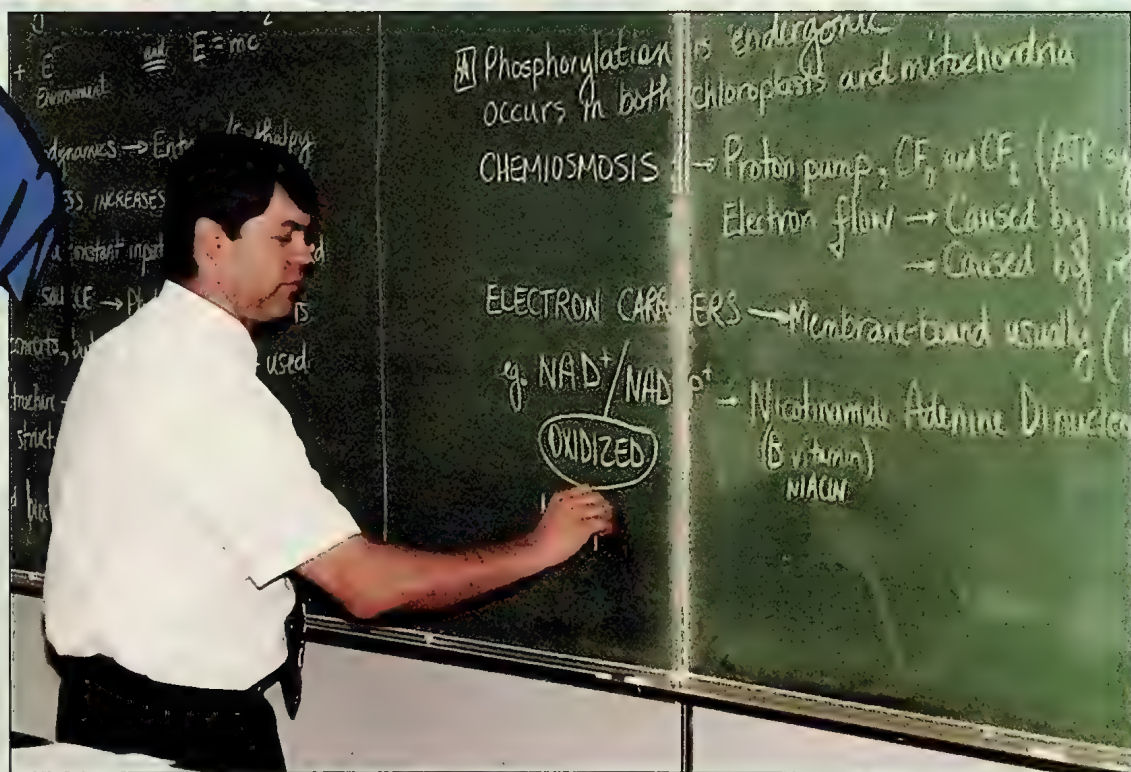

(another insane article which has absolutely nothing to do with the pictures on the page.)

SUPERSTITIONS

"WHAAAAAAT?")

What are superstitions? Superstitions are misplaced endeavors to understand the workings of the mind better. This is attempted, by being afraid of EVERY SINGLE THING that could possibly happen. Common examples are:

- if you walk under a ladder, you will have bad luck.
- if a black cat crosses your path, then you will also have bad luck.
- if you break a mirror or kill a spider, or open an umbrella indoors (why any normal person would open an umbrella indoors, is beyond reason) to begin with) it will still be BAD LUCK.

These are all the strictest of commands when referring to superstitions. Here are some slightly less conventional examples:

-if a man with one arm, says the word

"supercalifragilisticexpialidocious", while balancing on his one arm, on the floor of a goat show in New Orleans, then he will be quickly killed via goat; hence the bad luck aspect.

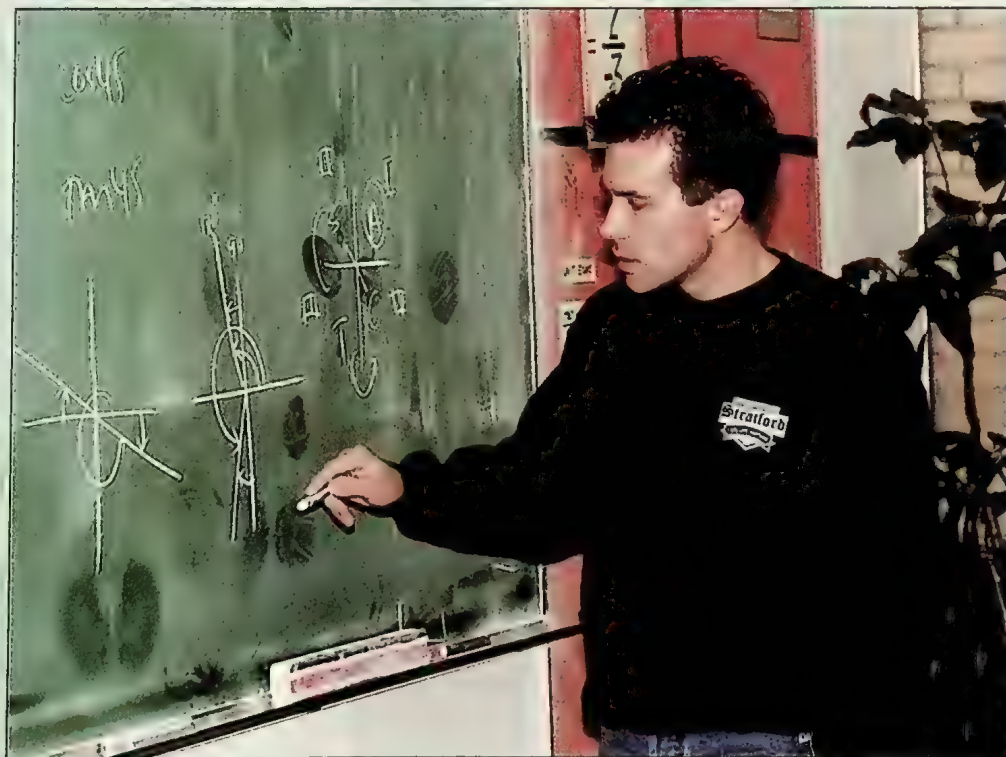

-if you invite all your friends and family over to your house to hear your housecat sing cabaret songs, and he refuses to so much as speak, then you will most likely be committed immediately to an insane asylum in the middle of nowhere(Manitoba).

-if a travelling salesman comes to your door after savagely murdering a frog , then you must wash your hands repeatedly until the man goes away.

-and finally, if your mother goes insane, go insane with her, and thus not have to worry about any more ridiculous superstitions.

THE END

Principal's Message

Mr. Demaine, Principal

A yearbook is a personal time capsule, usually perused with great initial interest, then files away on a shelf to be ignored for a time but finally it is consulted with increasing fondness as the years roll on.

The 1996 - 1997 school year is now the stuff of personal legend. Outside of our ever changing memories, this book is the only comprehensive visual recollection that we have of a year in our lives. It shows our victories, our joys, maybe even a little sadness, but above all, it shows our uniqueness. There never has been, nor will there ever be again, an experience exactly like the times that are chronicled in these pages.

Harry Ainlay provided the focus for this year of study, achievement, fun, and personal growth. Many of the things that we gained from one of our most formative experiences, our school, are illustrated here through pictures and words. Another year of Ainlay's traditions are brought to you by the work and talent of a dedicated editor, staff and advisors.

May this book help us all, student and staff alike, to look back with fondness on the way we created 1996-97. And, may it help us better recollect the way we were, and what and who touched our lives this year.

Students Union in Action!

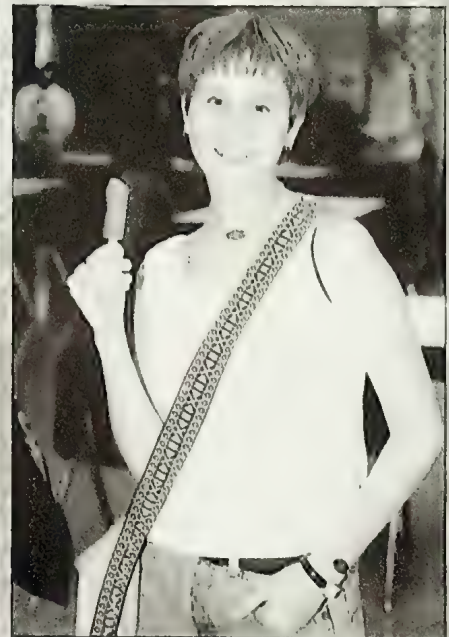

Throughout the year, the SU executive has striven hard to accomplish their goals of being the voice of the student body and trying to make the school work for everyone. It has been our job to focus on your concerns and ideas and we have made efforts to meet new students everyday. We have reached out to encourage new people to get involved and have organized numerous activities that pump up the Titan Spirit!!! From spirit week in September, the Canadian Student Leadership Conference and TVT in October, the Lawton Jr. High Clothing Drive in November to Christmas week in December, the first semester was action packed. Semester two began with Random Act of Kindness, Tri-Prov, and second Languages Week. Then came Culture Fest, and Open House. Spring brought warm sunshine and Students' Union Elections along Stress Release week. We hope that we have somehow reached out and made 1996-97 unforgettable for everyone.

President's Message

As this school year ends, we start a new journey toward accomplishing new dreams and goals. Although we will go our separate ways, we can't help but be reminded of our experiences as Ainlay Titans. Whether we enjoyed art, drama, music, leadership, sports, rotunda activities, or just hanging out with our friends, we all belonged. At Ainlay, we each found our niche and learned how to live cooperatively with each other. In such a large and diverse school it is no wonder that we have been prepared to be successful citizens in our communities. Thank you to everyone who has helped make the last three years "the greatest days of our lives....so far!" This year book is a time capsule that contain our memories. Take time to reminisce in future years; it's medicine for the soul. Keep it under your pillow and don't leave home without it!!

Loree Semeluk

1996-97 SU President

The 1996-97 art classes were taught by Mr. Miller, who has been at Harry Ainlay for fourteen years, and Mr. Withell, who has joined that staff this year. Mr. Withell previously taught at Dickensfield, Killarney and W.P. Wagner. Mr. Miller ran the Pottery club which was actively involved in hand-building, wheel work, sculpture and raku firing. Sherrin Berizowski was president of the club this year. Mr. Withell began the Dead Artists' Society. Students worked at model making and produced a mysterious animation film.

There were four student art shows in the Harry Ainlay Art Gallery; a student show at Rigoletto's Cafe in downtown Rice Howard Way, and an art show and demonstration at Southgate Mall during Education Week.

Again this year Ainlay had many art award winners. A painting by Jaque Choi was chosen by the Alberta Teachers' Association as the best from Edmonton high schools and is presently on display at Barnett House. Lan Yao was chosen the top art student in Alberta by the Alberta Society of Artists and received a scholarship to attend art summer school at Red Deer College. Ainlay art students won three awards in this year's Royal Tyrell Museum Logo Contest; Sam Weber received 1st place for grade 10 and best in category; Brenda Mack received honorable mention for grade 10, and David Cruikshank received honorable mention for grade 12. Lan Yao is the winner of the 1996/97 Michael Wollett Art Award as the top art student, and Jae-Hong Ahn received the Maia Reinking Art Award for excellence.

Major art awards also went to Nick Rudnicki, Nicole Van Galaan, Carol Black, Sherrin Berizowski, David Cruikshank, Ron Tang, and Kim Sawula.

Career and Technology Studies

Cosmetology

Cosmetology is a course in which students learn the different techniques of hair styling, manicures, pedicures and cosmetics. While the stench of perming solution fills surrounding hallways, students work madly to perfect the art of beautification.

Allison Williams

Automotives

This course gives a general introduction to the entire automobile including basic service operations. The students learn how to rebuild and maintain the parts of their vehicle, while being given hands on instruction and getting grubby in the process. One thing that automotives is definately lacking is the participation of girls in the class. There are some girls who enroll for the sole fact that they will be surrounded by a room filled with guys, and there are others who really do enjoy getting muck all over. This class is an educational experience that is made interesting and fun at the same time. Welding is also another aspect of automotives. Students learn the importance of hot metals, and bonding moments.

Food Studies

While sitting in Math class the smell of the foods room never failed to come wafting down the hallway. Usually this was a good thing. However occasionally they had you wondering what the heck they were making.

Food studies is designed to expand the average student menu from Kraft dinner to more adventures undertakings. From simple snacks to gourmet creations, food studies teaches you how to prepare a wide variety of foods.

Communication Technology

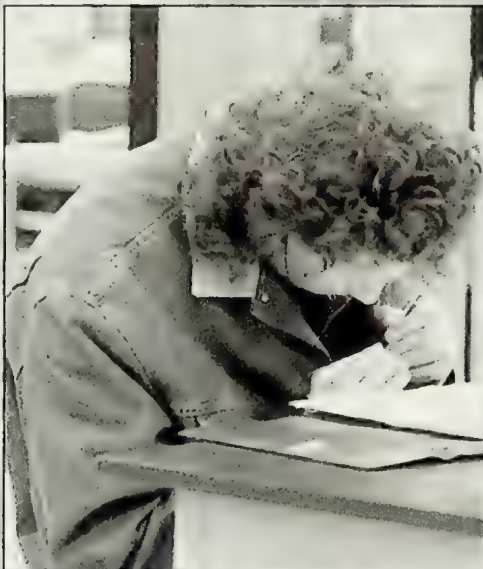

Communication

Studies...

introduces you to six areas of study including photography, video, printing, presentation, graphic design, and animation. In photography you learn about cameras, composition, taking pictures, developing, enlarging, and print finishing. In video you operate 8mm camcorders, script and shoot several productions, and edit final footage. Animation techniques are also introduced. In printing, you use state of the art Macintosh computers and software to produce images that can be duplicated using screen printing and lithography. Principles of design are reinforced while making your own designs for notepads and T-shirts. Scanners, CD ROM 's, and still video cameras can also be used in design creation. Access to Internet is available for re-searching presentation topics.

Design Studies

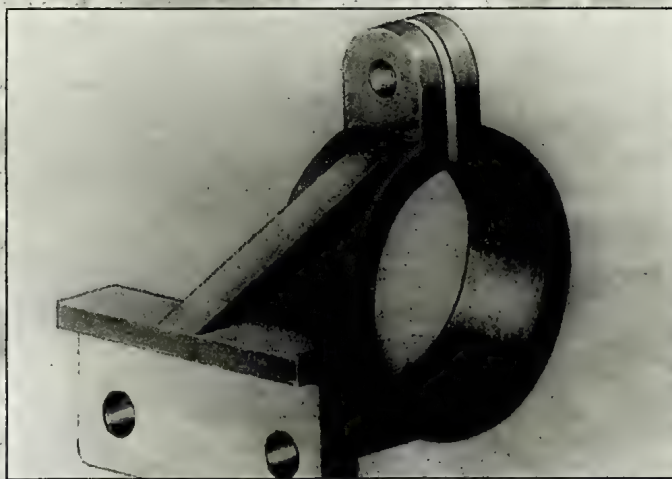

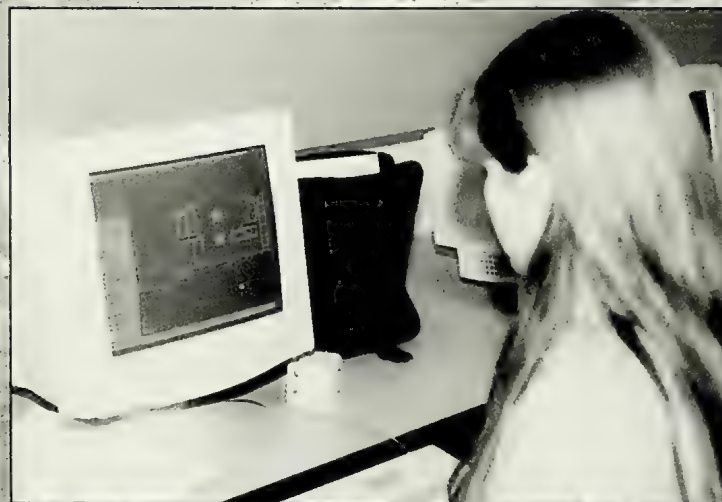

This exploratory course provides experiences in preparing pictorial and orthographic drawings. Dimensioning, sectioning and blueprint reading is studied. Computer Aided Drafting (C.A.D.) is introduced, as well. The course provides the necessary drafting experiences for students who wish to pursue careers in Architecture or Engineering. Computer & Math Club.

The Computer Club at work.

$$2+2=?$$

The math club provides students with an opportunity to enrich their high school mathematics education through competition. Students prepare for and participate in a series of math contests over the school year at the local, provincial, national, and international levels, while the emphasis is on participation. The students involved have won many individual and team awards. One member of the club, Byung-Kyu Chun, has won several national competitions and has qualified for Canada's international Mathematical Olympiad team the past 2 years. He is certain to qualify again this year.

The star of the Math Club Byung-Kyu Chun.

The Ikebana Club.

Ikebana, the Japanese art of arranging flowers, dates back to the 15th century when it was established as an art form. In earlier times, flower arrangement in Japan was not merely an art to admire its beauty but the offering of flowers to Buddha. The religious aspect of it has faded over the years, and is now appreciated for its aesthetic beauty. Today, there are approximately 3000 established ikebana schools in Japan and the art is admired and practiced in many parts of the world.

The Ikebana club meets once a month in the Japanese classroom. The members are currently learning one of the four basic styles of Ikebana, balancing three main stems representing the sky, mankind and the earth on a Kenzan (a needle point holder) in each of their arrangements. They welcome any one who is interested in this unique arrangement of flowers.

Ms. Ito-Fedrau shares her wisdom.

Environment Club

The human species among scientists is known as one of the most environment disturbing species that the world has ever known. For centuries we, as humans, have changed entire landscapes in order to make the surroundings more hospitable for ourselves, even at the expense of other animals of which we share the ecosystem. It has taken us a long time to realize the extent of the changes we are causing. This realization has inspired individuals to do what they can to help the situation. This group of inspired persons is none other than Ainlay students who together, with the help of the janitorial staff keep the school environment clean and recycle tonnes of reusable materials. They also donate to certain nature charities. This year the group has raised $428 from a bake sale, so that they could buy ten acres of the rainforest in the name of the school. The group has also donated $100 to the Sierra legal defense fund, Canadian parks and wilderness society. Together the group recovers approximately 1200 - 2500 pop cans and approximately a 1/2 tonne of paper per month. Thanks to this group of young individuals Harry Ainlay was signed on with "Destination Conservation".

President: Su-yin

Vice Presidents: Byung Kyu and Lucija

Activities: Michelle M. and Sheila G

Treasurer: Jodie C

Public Relations: Nina S, Jean-yin

Volunteer coordinator: Rebecca S

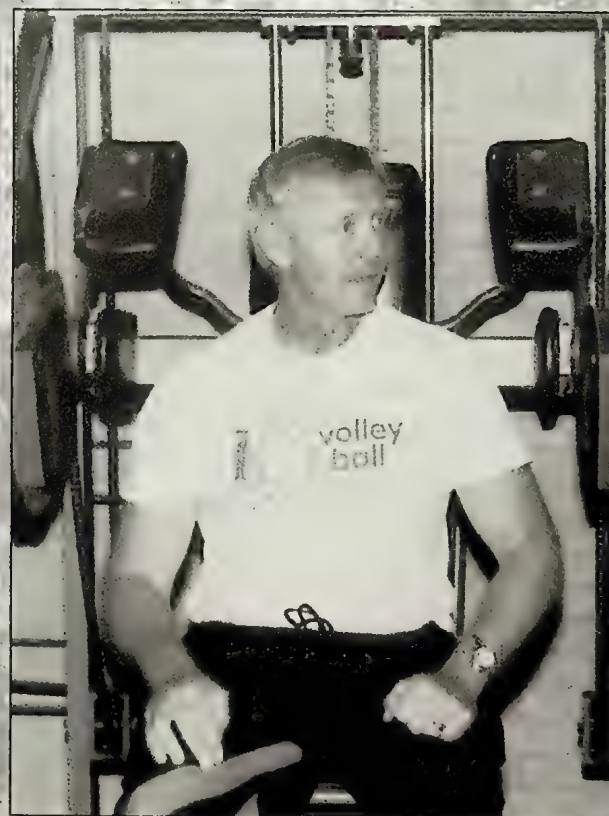

Other Members include: Nusrat, Carolyn, Sheila, Carl, Candice, Sormeh, Pavirta, Eunice, Yolanda, Tianna, Karolina, Shreyasi, Kate, Alison, Patricia, Aisha, Mona, Felicia.

Weight Training

The weight club offers students the opportunity to lift weights throughout the school year for various reasons. Some students want to get stronger for athletic reasons, while others are there for bodybuilding or simply for keeping fit. Members can work out at various times of the day from 7:30am-5:30pm. Members are allowed to work out during their spares if there are no Phys.-Ed. classes in the weight room. Most people work out during the lunch hour and after school. This year we had well over 100 members.

The members of the Titanic Newspaper Club publish four issues of the "The Titanic" per year. Their mandate is to reflect the views and interests of the students. They busily write articles, conduct interviews, solicit advertising, take pictures, type, edit, and do the layouts, then wait with eagerness and some apprehension for reaction to each edition. Through the staff sponsorship of Mr. McNab and the editor leadership of Ryaz Chagpar, Ainlay students enjoyed their collective journalism skills.

Pottery Club

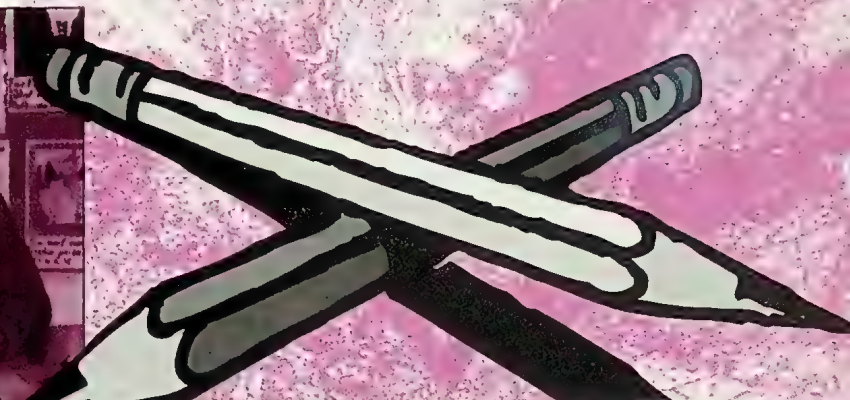

The Harry Ainlay Art Department Pottery Club was very active during the 1996-97 year. The club is sponsored by Mr. Miller, and meets after school on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The club is open to all, but restricted to 20 students. Students can earn up to 5 credits, or count their time towards International Baccalaureate CAS hours.

Members have had an opportunity to try a variety of projects this year, including hand-building, working on the wheel, trimming, sculpting, and glazing. Members have made their own glazes, and helped with loading and firing their projects. They were also able to work with raku clay, and participate in several raku firings during the year, with excellent results.

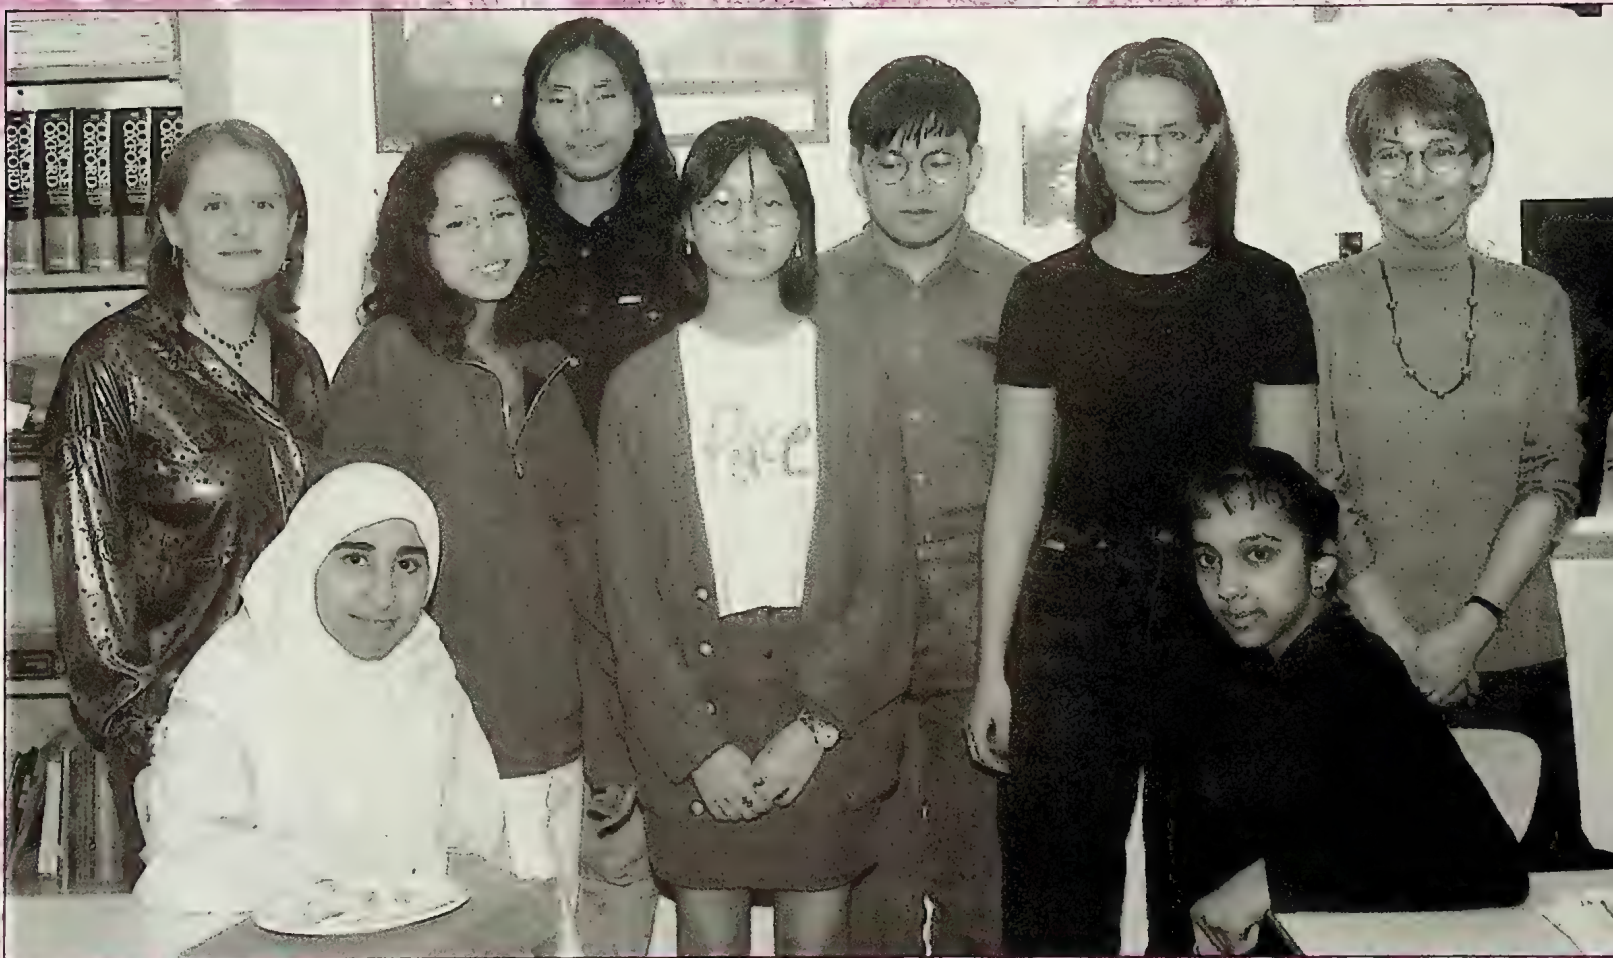

The members of this year's club are: Nicole Burisch (president), Sam Weber (vice-president), Iva Cheung, Mel Chondo, Luke Warman, Tianna Mapstone, Sherrin Berezowsky, Stacey Smyth, Megan Shaw, Colleen Shaw, Nicole Pakan, Amy Whitmore, Ivaylo Slavov, and Matthew Ivity.

The Muse

"The Muse", Ainlay's Arts Magazine, is published to display the creative talents within the school. This year it expanded to include second languages alongside the prose, poetry and visual art. The core of editors worked hard to make this edition bigger and better than ever. Thanks everyone.

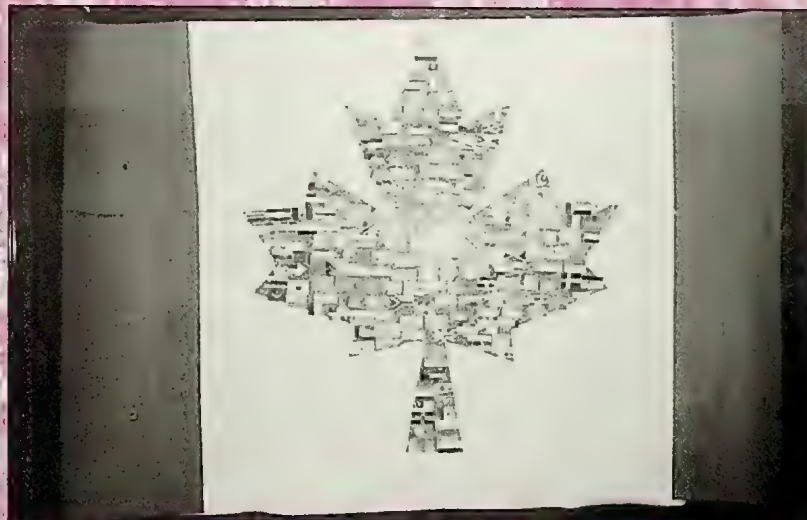

P.A.L.S.-or Peer Ambassador and Leadership Students, is a group of ESL and leadership students that meets on a bi-weekly basis. During our meetings, we learn about different cultures in Canada and around the world. As well, we celebrate different cultural events like Christmas and Chinese New Year. We play games, eat popcorn, and watch really neat movies like "Independence Day". As you can see, P.A.L.S. is a blast!! So come on out every Tuesday and Wednesday at lunch hour for a great time. P.A.L.S.....The world at your doorstep!

INTERNATIONAL CLUB

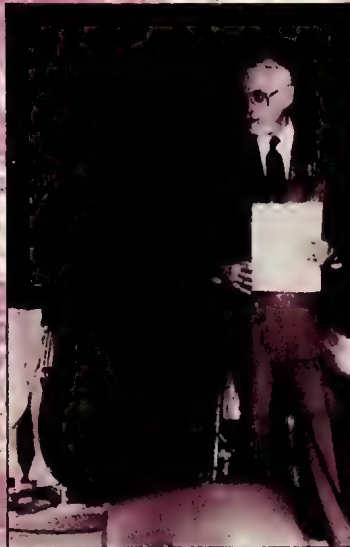

The International Club was formed in 1992 and its ongoing objective is to promote the awareness and appreciation of cultural diversity. Some of our many activities this year included our special Canadian flag, the great multicultural displays, and listening to a variety of speakers.

Amnesty International

Amnesty International (AI) is a worldwide movement of human rights activists. We work together to prevent violations of people's fundamental civil and political rights, by governments and opposition groups.

Amnesty activists come from all cultures and walks of life, and now number well over one million people around the world. We believe that mass public pressure, expressed through effective forms of action, is critical to stopping human rights violations.

Amnesty International has operated as an active social justice club at Harry Ainlay for eight years. 1996-97 began with a play performed by Amnesty students in the theater. It was an effective method in raising the awareness of the Amnesty mandate. The film festival held in November served to educate the school community on human rights.

Letter writing campaigns are the backbone of Amnesty International. Amnesty students lectured, then conducted letter writing sessions in grade 10 Social Studies classes.

December 10, 1996, International Human Rights Day, was celebrated with a ceremony and information booths set up in Room 309.

The annual benefit concert, featuring Tommy Banks and several other talented musicians and poets, was a tremendous success! All proceeds from this concert will be used to facilitate the work of Amnesty International organization.

Students volunteer their time, energy and organizational ability to the Amnesty International Club. Ainlay students are involved with the Edmonton Youth Campus network, speak at SUNIA (United Nations Summit) and serve as advisors to students in junior/senior high schools establishing clubs.

Our philosophy:

"It is better to light a candle than to curse the darkness"

As if those Yearbook people didn't have enough power in the making of this book, we went and gave them their own page!

The Yearbook is, and always has been, a large mess of "stuff". In this manner, it is appropriate that the yearbook page itself, is another large mess of stuff.

Here are a few examples of the products of the deranged minds in this year's club: Our first venture was to try and write a book of advice.

Page two: What to do with large dead mouse.

Refer to page one.

As you may have noticed, someone in the club has a strange fascination with dead rodents. The book's production was stopped.

Derangement example #2

Because Yearbook persons are so darned creative, we often discover excerpts of their poetry and prose littering the floors.

Here is one excerpt we discovered only recently:the little man screamed and fell over his chair, it was a girlish scream and confused the men in black robes who were standing and watching him. Suddenly a large dead organism fell out of a bush, and everyone had to be brought to the hospital.....

A disturbing vision isn't it?

Along with being deranged in their writing styles, the Yearbook club has also formulated a plan to take over the world. They have mapped out the future government of this new world, allowing for all of the presidencies (AKA dictatorships) to be run either by one of them personally, or by one of their huge purple octopi minions. These they will have genetically engineered, not only to be purple, but also to have the improved brain capacity of large ducks (which are superior to octopi), and to be able to shoot beams out of their tentacles in large quantities. The new world, of course, would have to be ruled by octopi considering that, according to my sources, the plan involved the destruction or maiming of virtually every land creature, thereby leaving only the sea in which to live.

Those devising this theory, after being discovered, were immediately arrested thus reducing the size of our club.

The Gnomes.

There once was a stupid red gnome. He decided to go outside. This wasn't smart because the other gnomes didn't like him, in fact they all wanted to kill him. After many hours of wandering around a big tree he realised that he was being watched, and that the other gnomes were throwing rocks at his head. Finally, after most of his scalp had been scraped off by the rocks he decided to retaliate. Yes, he would kill them all. He loaded his barrel advance-fully automatic shotgun, and killed every last gnome in the forest. Later, while pondering his actions, a bear came from behind him and tore him to shreds. Then he ate the remains, as well as eating all the other gnome carcasses in the vicinity. This was not a smart action because the gnomes were poisonous. The bear died shortly afterwards. Tune in next year for the exiting conclusion.

Speech and Debate

Speech and debate really says it all when it comes to the activities of the club. Under the direction of Mr. Friesien, a talented group of Ainlay students have met throughout the year to hone their skills in articulating speech and in turn, practicing this in a debate atmosphere.

Climbing Club

Under the direction of Mr. Shaw, a group of Ainlay students have met throughout the year to defy gravity and climb to great heights. Most of their practice activities took place at the facility, 'Off the Wall', which is located on the south side. However, it was not uncommon to see Mr. Shaw during noon hours with students swinging and suspended from the ceiling of his classroom. We are not too sure if this was part of his climbing club or if he has resorted to a new form of discipline in his classroom. Stay tune to next year's yearbook where a reporter will hopefully unveil the facts behind this mysterious activity.

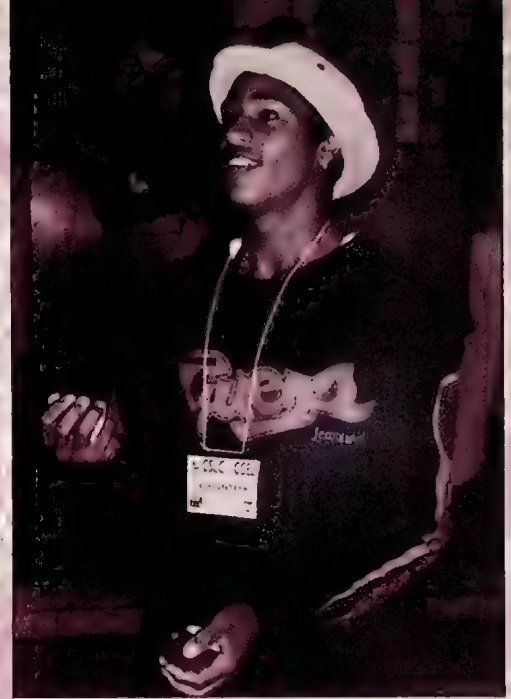

Events

CSLC '96

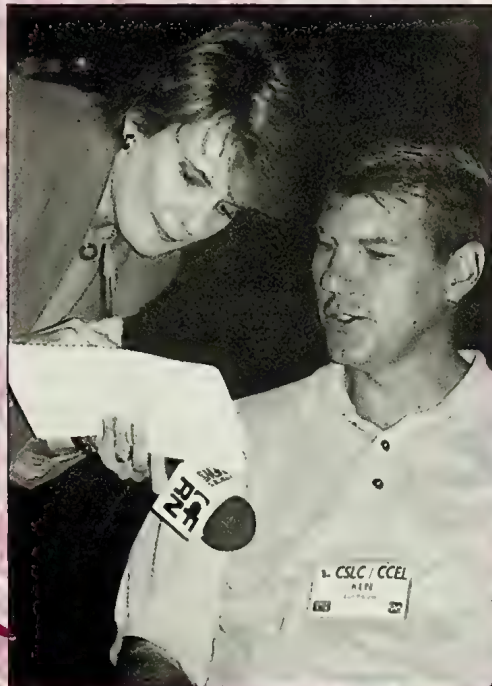

For those who haven't heard, Ainlay recently hosted the 12th Canadian Student Leadership Conference. The conference started on Tuesday, October 1, when more than 600 delegates from across Canada gathered in the halls of our great school. It was the culmination of two years of hard work, and student Co-chair Loree Semeluk and Ryan Hoskins can attest to this fact. As a delegate from Ainlay, (or SLCSTER as we were fondly referred to), I, as well as many others, were up to the wee hours of the morning the week before the conference, helping out in any way that we could. We put their heart and soul into the making of the conference, and did a magnificent job that made all Canada proud. Our job, as 'SLCSTERS', was mainly during the conference, where we got to attend the conference, and act as leaders for small groups. One of our jobs was to answer any questions other delegates might have, but it's funny since we ourselves were just learners. And only could try to help fulfil the dream the executive and steering had for the conference. The overall theme of the conference was Leadership in Motion, and it was demonstrated very well.

when 600 youth delegates got into the community to try and make a difference. As Co-chair Ryan Hoskins accurately stated, "If youths are doing positive things, then the community begins to see this and genuine respect grows. And from that respect, youth begin to be listened to." Thus, as the youth of Canada, and the leaders of tomorrow, we endeavoured to find answers to problems concerning the Young Offenders Act, Quebec Sovereignty, The United Nations, and much more! We also heard presentations by Marc Sharonbrock, one of the foremost motivational speakers in North America, Peter Legge, CEO of a national publishing company, Sharon Wood, the first North American woman to climb Mount Everest, and Don Horwood, coach of two time national champions U of A Golden Bears. The keynote speaker of the week included Dr. Steve Ramsanker, winner of the order of Canada and multicultural educator, Valerie Kaufman offering a perspective on first nations, and Deni Lorieau outlining issues dealing with Quebec Sovereignty. Woah! As you can tell, by the end of the week, our minds were mush, but it didn't stop there,

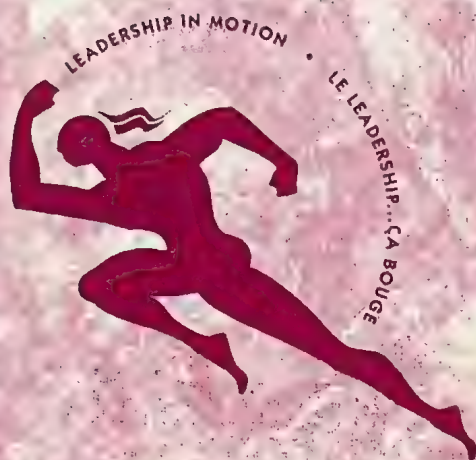

Included in this once in a lifetime package was an approximate three dances, wide variety of open activities and day passes to any attractions at West Edmonton Mall, and a tour of Fort Edmonton. But let me not to forget the evening at the Convention Center, whereon the last night of the conference we talked, ate, and laughed over good times we had during the week. Never less, night must fall, and after dancing 'til morning, there was a sad farewell over new friendships we will never forget. In short, the conference was awesome, reminding us that youth can influence society in a positive way, that we can make a difference for the better, and that Canada is the best nation on Earth to live in. Because each and every student at Ainlay gave their full cooperation during the week, CSLC '96 turned out to be a smashing success. I realize now, more than ever, that students at Ainlay can accomplish anything they wish to, and with continued persistence and determination can succeed in every facet of their lives. I think Co-chair Loree Semeluk, sums up the conference nicely with regard to Ainlay when she states "...I view Ainlay as a mini-world. If we can integrate with so many different kinds of people, and live with them, and learn from them, we'll be so prepared when we go out into the world. We're ready for success."

Titan Volleyball

This year was another exciting year of volleyball. 16 of the best teams from across western Canada came to compete against each other from October 17th to 19th for another Titan Volleyball Tournament. After 6 long months of hard work done by the organizing committee, TVT 96 began with the opening ceremonies on October the 17th. After 3 days of outstanding volleyball, the tournament ended with the senior men's final. Congratulations to the Ainlay senior men's volleyball team who defeated the Grand Prairie Tomahawks to win the gold, and to the senior women's who won the consolation final. A special thanks to the organizing committee and to every one else who helped to make TVT 96 a success.

The names of the places mean nothing unless you have people to associate them with. Jennifer, has too much money, and continues her endless search for shoes. Alexis asks the waiter at the hotel restaurant in Paris for water. Joanne's alarm clock doesn't work. Heather teaches us that cool ashtay thing in Munich, you know, that thing, with the ashtrays. Lynn and Heather go on a quest to push all the buttons in the Deutsches museum. Lynn, was that you singing 'Lambert the Sheep-ish Lion'? Jessica freaks over a spider, or whatever that thing was (It moved! We saw it move!). Lucy kisses dwarfs in Salzburg (I don't think that will cure that nasty wart-he had!). Mandy got choclote mousse, after she got lost (or was it the rest of us that got lost?). Mona and Nina searched for souvenirs. Mona has no money! Syvale acts as our main French translator, and Chris is always there with his camera. Ms. Fischer and her successful quest for Vuarnet Sunglasses. Europe was jet-lag, sunny days, food (what was that funky chicken thing in Paris?), crepes, crepes, and more crepes, did I mention CREPES? Lynn and Meagan send their love to Jimmy Morrison. Thanks to the teachers that put up with us and organized this trip. We had the time of our lives. Thanks for the memories. . . and the jet-lag so we had a excuse to stay home on Monday.

Encounters With Canada

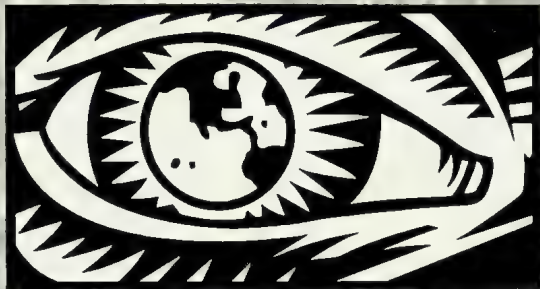

This photo displays some of the many students who went to Ottawa this year under the Encounters With Canada program. Aaron Nerenberg and Peter Mentz toured under the 'Sports and Fitness' program. Nicole Burisch studied the 'Law' program while Chantalle Robichaud and Joanna Krupicz enjoyed 'Arts and Culture.' All found their experiences very enjoyable, educational and rewarding.

Morgan Funston (Law/RCMP), Joanna Krupicz (Arts and Culture), Victoria Yeh (Arts and Culture) and Nicole Burisch (Law/RCMP) all attended the sessions mentioned in Ottawa at the Terry Fox Centre for one week at various times this year. These four students had a very interesting and worthwhile experience in Ottawa as they were participating in activities of interest to them and meeting many other young people from across Canada. Encounters With Canada is a wonderful opportunity for Canadian students, ages 15-17, to experience rewarding sessions, meet people from across the country, travel to Ottawa, and have fun while learning how to appreciate the similarities and differences between us.

While most grade twelves were drearily recovering from grad and after grad, a small group of hard core campers from Phys. Ed. 30 loaded onto vans at 10:00 the morning after grad, and headed to Jasper for three days of camping and activities that proved to be truly survival skill based. On mere hours of sleep, these extremists battled the rapids of the Athabasca River, the hiking trails of Maligne

Canyon, climbed the "Chimney," and biked up mammoth hills, not to mention survived the camp fire cooking habits of Shane Van Buskirk ("Shane, that chicken is still frozen!!").

Basketball T

Only half an hour ago he was wearing a uniform and playing in his team's final game. Now he's an active spectator in a "No Fear" sweatshirt, cheering and stomping away. As the B-Ball swishes through the hoop and he reclaims his seat, the slogan on Andrew Wagner's shirt ripples, then reassembles. "Basketball is life," it reads, "The rest is all details." No one seems inclined to argue here at the 24th Annual Tri-Provincial Basketball Tournament "Sure, Tri-Pro rules!" says Jasper Hodson of the Duchess Park Condors. "We didn't do as well as we hoped but it was still fun to play." With excellent athletes and excellent attitudes like these, Tri-Pro '97 was destined to be a success.

However, though the spotlight shined mostly on the athletes, the tournament simply would not have happened without a dedicated, behind-the-scenes "stage crew". It took 23 executives, 32 hosts and many more volunteers to keep the project running smoothly, from getting sponsors to keeping scores. "I think it went really well," says Christine Lee, Chairperson of Tri-Pro Executive, "We got lots of people out and generated a lot of spirit."

But no one showed more spirit than our own basketball teams who went all out to prove that they can do battle with the best on the B-Ball court and win. The Harry Ainlay Titans swept away the medals with the Senior and Junior men winning first place; the JuniorTimes size 10.1 by a mere point to the Burt Church from Airdrie. These were no small feats considering a total of thirty-two teams from British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan competed in the tournament. With their many victories, the Titans proved once again that they truly are among "the best in the West". These 1996-97 teams actually descend from a long line of Titans who also proved their excellence on the court. The Tri-Pro tradition began in 1974, when Mr. Anderson created and organised the first tournament. The responsibility was handed to other teachers as the years passed. This year, the tournament's creator is proud to be involved in his creation in many ways.

Though the banners are put away, the bleachers are flattened and the teams are back home, the tradition will continue. Now that the rush is over and Tri-Pro '97 is packed away, there's an unmistakable feeling of satisfaction and pride in the air for a job well done. "I think it was a big success," says Alana Bevan, a volunteer in many areas of the tournament, "and it was a great chance for all the people at Ainlay to show their school spirit." Her words are personified in memories of spectators cheering, volunteers hard at work, executives admiring the success of their planning and athletes giving their all out best. Yet as a Titan helped his fallen opponent back to his feet, it became clear that the heart of Tri-Pro was really in the spirit of the game. The rest is all details.

California

This year the music department toured with a 90 piece Concert Band, a 50 voice Concert Choir, a stage band and a Jazz Choir to southern California. While there, they participated in festivals sponsored by the Southern California Band Directors Association. Over the five days students were able to spend a day at the beach, a day at Disneyland and they went on a tour of the highlights of the Los Angeles area. We left Edmonton on April 16th and arrived in 26C temperatures. It was great to have breakfast each day by the pool. The weather was perfect throughout the stay, however we landed in Edmonton on the morning of April 21st in blowing snow and frigid temperatures. A shock to all of our systems!

Early in the fall, the music department held it's second annual music at Camp Nakamun. It proved to be a great experience as students rehearsed with guest conductors, attended master classes and finished the camp with a dinner and performance for the parents at the camp. If it hadn't been for the three feet of new snow, it would have been a perfect camp. Fortunately nobody ended up in the ditch on the drive out of camp and all the students returned to school with a renewed vitality and interest in music.

This was another excellent year for the music department as we received gold awards and superior marks at numerous festivals throughout the year. Both the Concert Band and the Symphonic Band were nominated to the Provincial Festival as a result of their superior performances at the local festival.

The 16th annual Big Band Bash was held in February to a sell-out crowd who enjoyed buffet dinner and dancing to the sounds of the Harry Ainlay Stage Bands Combos and Jazz Choir.

For the 1996-97 curling season Harry Ainlay High School entered seven teams in to the greater Edmonton High School Curling League which consisted of a total of fifty-three teams. league teams curled at both the Shamrock and Ottwell Curling Clubs on Tuesdays and Thursdays from October to the end of January. Harry Ainlay teams usually were scheduled to curl on Tuesdays and practiced at the Derrick Curling Club on Thursdays.

Three Harry Ainlay teams completed the Greater Edmonton High School Curling League play-off schedul with gold metal standings: senior boys team (A) gold in the consolation round, mixed team gold in the consolation round, junior boys team (A) gold in the championship round. Michael Chong, James Fox, Ryan Ohashi, and Matthew Nilson placed second in the B event of the Greater Edmonton High School Curling League Bonspiel held in February. The junior boys team consisted of Micheal Kotyk, Colin Topolintsky, Tom Griener, and Mark Pannekoek are to be congratulated on winning the Edmonton City Championship Trophy in the junior division for the 1996-97 curling season.

All curling team members are congratulated for their commitment, effort and positive attitude throughout the season. A thank-you is extended to those parents who were able to come to the curling games. a sincere thank-you goes out to Mrs. Moland for her commitment and effort in assisting curlers in development of their skills and techniques. Thank-you also to the Derrick Curling Club for providing curling teams with practice ice and making the curling season a success.

Swim Team

his year swim team had a total of forty-four members, with fourteen of them being male competitors. Our team was made up of people who were swimming for their first time in meets and others who have been competing for years on numerous teams. The City Championships were held on December 3, 1996, at Kinsmen Rec. Center and gave the team members a chance to show the city that Ainlay is going to give Scona a run for the championships. At City Championships we finished third overall and Catherine O'Brien won a gold medal in the 50 and 200 meter Freestyle Open events. Victoria Pischak won a gold medal in the 100 meter Freestyle event.

The Waterpolo had an outstanding season this year. The Senior Team was undefeated in the regular season and in the playoffs, winning City Championships. The Junior team had a great season, but was defeated on their way to the City Championships.

A Winning Team

he Harry Ainlay Cheer Team had a fantastic year. These enthusiastic girls blew the competition away at the provincial championship held at Harry Ainlay, by taking the gold. Their next competition took this young two year old team to sunny California. Their months of training and practice had payed off, as they visited Hollywood, San Diego, and competed in the NCA Spirit Classic Championship in Disneyland. Their experience was awesome and they were proud to represent their home town and Canada.

Grade 12 has come and passed! Oh, how fast the year has slipped away. All the memories of the last twelve years are now just that - memories. Some of these are captured within the covers of this yearbook. Enjoy! The pages that follow display the culmination of all your hard work. Commencement at the Jubilee Auditorium is always a time to be proud of scholastic achievement. It is a time that parents outwardly display their pride. Then comes the awards night. The scholastic, athletic and service awards make one appreciate that Ainlay truly lives up to the reputation of "In All Things Excellence." And then there is the grad banquet. Everyone dressed up in their splendor sharing that special day with their 'significant other.'

GRAD '97

The World Awaits

Principal Demaine, staff of Ainlay, supportive parents, friends, the Friends of Seven, the Group of Seven, the artists, the dramatists, the Pavarotti's, the vocally challenged, the vertically challenged, the horizontally challenged, rotund people, people of the Rotunda, people with good looks, good people with books, the environmentalists, people who live in the environment, the jocks, people of sports, people of all sorts, the class of 1997: (Was that everybody?)

The talents and backgrounds of this year's graduands range from a broad spectrum as multifarious as... the types of cheeses. (Will that be macaroni and blue cheese or macaroni and swiss cheese sir?) I suspect, however, that there are greater questions in the minds of my fellow graduands. What does the future hold for us? What would we see if we could look through the windows of time? Perhaps, in this school, I should have said the skylights of time. Windowless classrooms are just one of the many memories we share. Nevertheless, while we share so much, our futures will be just as diverse as the class of 1997.

Next year, some graduands will attend post-secondary education, a few will travel, others will have already entered the work force. Jobs always seem to be a major concern. Keeping in mind that the best job is currently to be... Bill Gates, what will be the most lucrative industry in the future? Telecommunications? Electronics? I disagree. The career of the future will be: the garbageman. The future will hold many changes in this rapidly changing field. First of all, the official title is "waste disposal PERSON", not the garbageman. Next, given the extremely complex intellectual requirements of this career, one must have an intimate knowledge of the plastics industry; skills in mediating between corporations and environmentalists; research experience in biodegradables; and an education in aerospace, the final frontier for apple cores.

Without a doubt, the importance of technological progress will increase in the future. We must be careful of the price, however. With the development of machinery and genetic technology, humans will grasp more tightly to their humanity and individuality. Although the IBM computer, Deep Blue, defeated Kasparov at chess, the world reaction was that humans are still more sophisticated than a collection of wires and metal. The study of genetics, which recently produced an accidental cloning of Dolly, has sparked fears of a sheep-like human race. The future will hold only more ethical issues about the control of technology and genes. Still, we will have solved the problem once faced "a long time ago, in a galaxy far, far, away," when, due to the lack of genetic knowledge, we discovered the phrase: "Luke, I am your father." Seriously, while maintaining awareness of new and interesting developments, humanity must never submit to the rule of mechanization.

Fellow graduands, no mortal knows what lies in store for us. You may be a waste disposal person, or a sheep, or even the big cheese. No matter what will happen, you will bring your experiences of Harry Ainlay High School to your future. Graduation is an event of happiness and sadness. The good news is that we graduate. The bad news is that... we graduate. Nonetheless, while we promise to maintain contact with our school, our teachers, and our friends with whom we have shared three marvelous years, we look forward to the challenges of the future. Class of 1997, the world awaits you. May the Force be with you.

(Thanks Agrell for laughing so hard; thanks Mrs. Hamilton for reading, re-reading, re-re-reading...; thanks Amber, Keri, and Mrs. Baker for telling me where to walk, thanks bro for your cheesy suggestions, and thanks mom and dad!)

Madame President, honoured graduands, staff, parents and guests, It is my distinct pleasure to address the 31st Commencement class of Harry Ainlay High school. Your theme "The World Awaits" indicates a belief that exciting times lie ahead, times of promise; times of achievement, times of fulfilment.

We cannot foretell the future with accuracy. Projections of politicians and economists, the visionaries who set our course to the future, are rarely accurate for more than the short term, but where is our accurate guidance for the long term? As Abraham Lincoln said, "the best thing about the future is that it comes one day at a time."

These three years have seen you pass from adolescence to the threshold of that waiting world. With such a transition comes increasing knowledge, maturity, and a fuller consciousness of not just one's self but also of what awaits. Consciousness, of course, prepares us for our interaction with that waiting world.

Tonight, with commencement, we stop to take a snapshot in the constantly moving process of education and its relation to the world that awaits. At this time, we reflect on what Harry Ainlay has established within the three years of our association with this body of young people. A school is not a building, not a staff, not students, it is a synthesis of all. It is a corporate entity that, if successful, has established a shared purpose among its various parts. That shared purpose will be founded on the realized need for community support and cooperation in our quest for life-long learning as we travel toward the improvement of self and society.

As educators, we strive to ensure that your schools leave you with a thirst for knowledge, an attitude that values the hard work of study, and a desire for truth and meaning. To the extent that we have been successful, we have established a shared purpose in preparing for the world that awaits.

Ainlay is a learning environment rich in the experiences that prepare young people for the world. Besides the very best of programs, teaching and curricula, you have benefitted from the stimulation of the keen and well-motivated minds of fellow students. At times, you have worked and played together with peers of all races, ethnicities, religions, and physical make-ups. All of this has taken place in an atmosphere characterized by mutual respect and cooperation. The attitudes formed here will be the foundation of the future Canada.

As mentioned, the future is rarely if ever clear for any generation, but in the midst of the technological and social revolution now underway, clairvoyance is not more easily apparent. As you join this future, the best advice one can give is to plan for flexibility, particularly in the workplace. Flexibility is always best maintained by acquiring the knowledge and skills necessary to not just cope with change, but to be on the leading edge of change. This means that whatever you do, you must be committed to life-long learning - for you education must never cease. Another area of strength in the future will be your ability to work cooperatively with others. Though there is always opportunity for the spark of individual genius, the reality of modern society is that most opportunity will be found and exploited in close relationship with the work of others. Leadership will not fall to those who direct, but will increasingly fall to those who can inspire and empower. Complexity determines that we will solve most of society's needs and wants in close relationship with others.

On behalf of Harry Ainlay High School staff I would like to thank you for sharing the last three years as part of the Ainlay experience. It is your effort, dedication, achievement, and service that raises the Titan Tradition ever upward.

In the world that awaits, I wish the Class of '97 good opportunities, much happiness, and a fair wind to fill your sails!

Commencement 1997 was made memorable not only by those who walked across the stage, but by those who took the time to speak. Clockwise from the top left: Robyn Eeson, Mistress of Ceremonies; Karen Gawne delivering the Motivational Blessing; the unforgettable 'Teapot Lady', Dr. M. Armour; and Message from the Board of Trustees by Mrs. Jean Woodrow.

1997's Class Historians

Kent Gilchrist
Nima Maham
Nathan Po

They came, they moshed, they cried and eulogized our three years at Ainlay with distinguished and not-so-distinguished humour. The only thing we were left to do was laugh. And laugh we did.

N= Nathan

K= Kent

T= Nima

K: Good evening Harry Ainlay. It's grad week! How do you feel?!... I said how do you feel? This must be SCONA's commencement... I said how do you feel?

N: Anyway, we have just a couple of announcements to make before we begin. First of all, we've just been notified, there's a car in the parking lot with its lights on, but you've got to stay for the speech so we won't tell you the license plate number until later.

T: Secondly, um, the staff decided it would be a good idea for us to give away some prizes at this year's commencement. So we thought, hey, the U2 concert's coming up and maybe we could get some tickets - and we did. So if the lucky audience members sitting in...

K: Uh... we've got M 231

N: K 103

K: and J 16

T: would check under their seats, they'd find... that we would be pretty stoopid to give those tickets away.

K: Yeah, we've also been getting some complaints from some of the football players out there.

T: Apparently some of them have gotten a little tired of hearing the same football jokes over and over...

N: ...at each commencement they've attended for their 4 years of grade 12.

K: So, out of extreme respect for them...

N: And their incredible ability to beat the living daylights out of us-

T: We've decided that here will be No Football Jokes This Year. I know, I know, it's disappointing, but...

K: Well, I'm Kenton Gilchrist...

N: ...I'm Nathan Po...

T: ...and I'm Nima Maham

N: ...and we are your class historians for 1997.

K: Through a moving recount of days gone by, we'll carry you through the best three years of your life, stirring up happy thoughts...

T: ...and possibly some painful memories of a time when you were much smaller, at the mercy of the grade 12's [show slide: Nima being stuffed in a locker]

N: For the next few minutes we'll take you through some of the happier times and some of the more emotional times [look oddly at N] of the past three years. Oooooohhhh, can't you just feel the nostalgia?!!

N&T stand silent for a moments, seemingly overcome with emotion.

K: Wow. It's been a great three years, hasn't it? I look out at all of these faces, and I can still remember the first time I saw all of you.

N: Grade 10. Ahhh, those were the days. I even remember when I picked Ainlay as my institution of choice for the next three years of my life.

T: The lack of windows kinda makes you wonder if it's really a LEARNING institution.

K: Yeah, but it's been good to us. Why did we choose Ainlay anyways?

N: I think it probably had a lot to do with everything Ainlay has to offer.

Opportunities for everyone in Arts, Academics, Athletics, Clubs...

K: Gangs...gangs with clubs. Academic gangs with clubs.

T: Yeah, you've really gotta watch out for those roving IB gangs!

K: They might bore you into submission, or steal all of your pencils or something

[Nathan and Kent step to the side, reach into pockets and "discreetly" empties piles of pencils onto the ground.]

T: Nima goes nuts...

Mom, dad... It's time to come clean. You know that day that I came back with those bruises- I wasn't hit by a car. (Nathan and Kent are obviously distraught) Remember when you gave me that graphing calculator, I thought, I'm a big boy, I can take care of myself. I thought I could make it through the IB hallway... but I was wrong. They jumped me and stole my graphing calculator and my physics text book.

Nathan goes over to comfort Nima- pats him on shoulder...

T: DON'T HIT ME BYUNG!

K: In grade ten, we were faced with the truth that it is much harder to get a date in high school. As any good CALM student would know that by the time grade 10 rolled around, the girls had matured a lot more than us guys.

N: I finally realized that making farting noises with my armpits was not the way to win over the ladies...

T: You mean it isn't (slide of Nima trying to impress girls by farting armpits)

K: Grade ten, the year when the school slogan might as well have been "in oblivious excelsior"...

T: The year the rotunda became the center of our universe...

N: Or at least some sort of home base for those of us who couldn't see any difference between the five hundreds and the two hundreds...

T: and couldn't seem to be able to read those massive wooden signs hanging from the ceiling telling use exactly where we were. The year that our excuse for being late was "but I got lost."

K: Grade 10 was the year when some of us actually did our homework, sitting in front of the OJ trial, or listening to music or something. And the year when everyone and his dog tried out for the football team...

N: ...and boy could that dog play

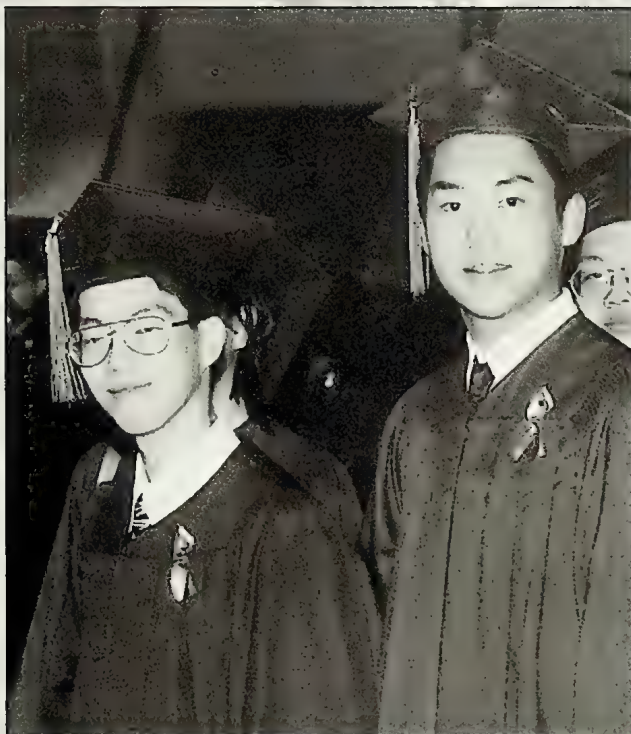

K: the year we madly rushed to get involved in school activities...

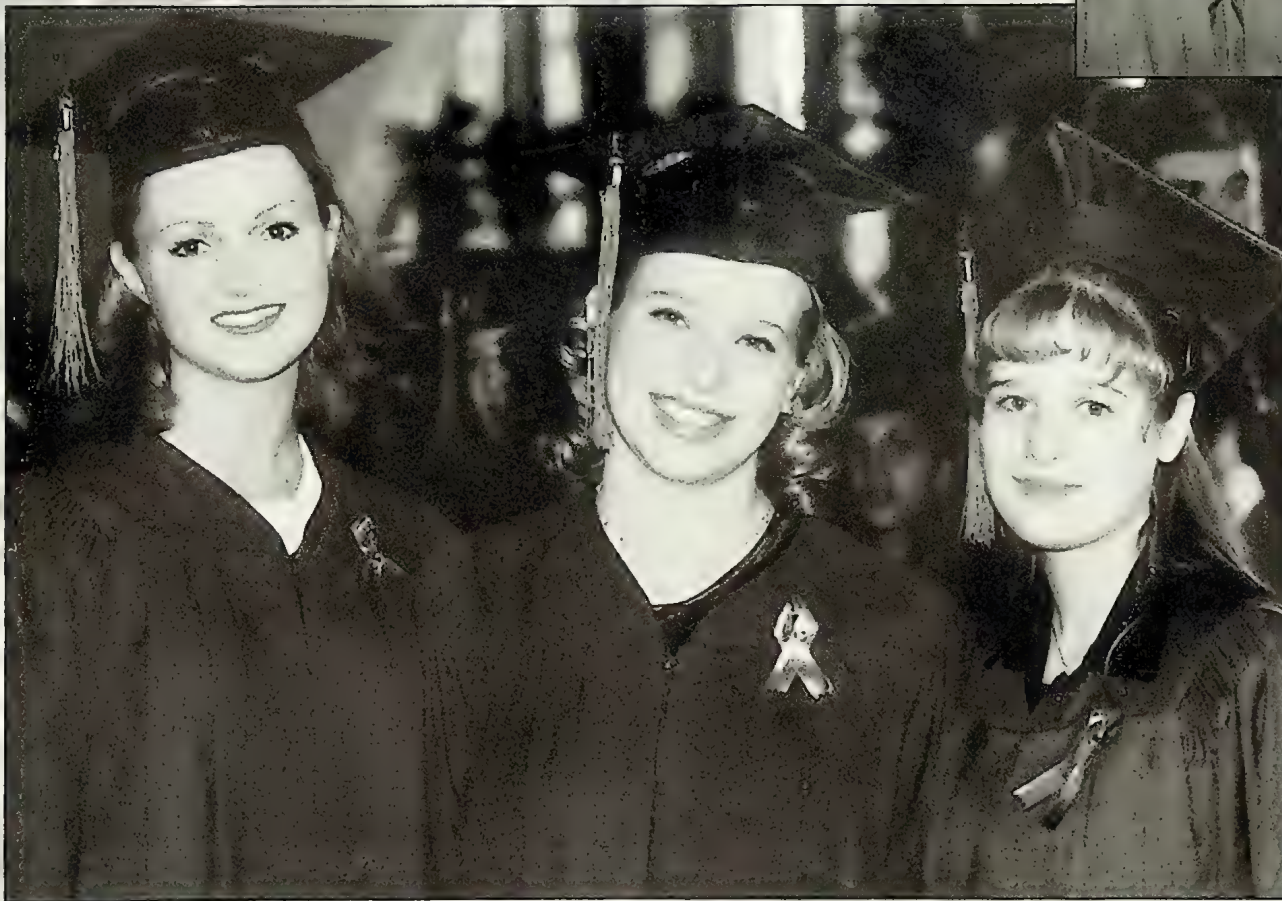

T: ...before realizing we didn't have to...

N: ...the year we madly rushed to get to class....

T: ...before realizing we didn't have to....
 K: ... Oh, and who could forget the "incident"
 N: OH YEAH! The incident...?
 K: yeah, you know that thing... that happened... with the thing...
 N: and the stuff...
 T: ...yeah...
NKT stop talking, looked flustered.
 K: all right, all right, nothing happened in grade 10.
 N: There was no chemical spill, no fire, no volcanic eruption... it was pretty much a non-year. It looks like you all only completed two years! - Looks like you've got one more to go- see you next year, suckers!
 T: wait a minute! Who could forget the touching scene of Mr. Powell first facing his gambling problem in front of hundreds of adoring fans at Tri-Prov. [slide of mr. Powell playing poker with Nima]
 K: Although it wasn't widely known, I suppose grade 10 was also the year the Ainlay was selected to host CSLC '96, something that was a big part of a lot of people's lives throughout the next two school years and summers.
 T: Like who?!
 N: Not us... We spent our summer pumping iron. [slide of Nathan being crushed by a 3 pound barbell]
 T: I spent my summer stuck in a classroom and doing homework in front of the OJ trial.
 K: By grade 11, most of us had gotten the hang of things. Third period quickly became Southgate 20, and we all learned that the only real difference between the students and the staff at Ainlay was the access to the private teacher washrooms.
 N: We also finally figured out how to clear a spot for a group of friends in Ainlay's busy cafeteria to look more like this point [Slide of empty cafeteria], you just open the door, walk in, and yell...
 2 FOR 1 ICHY-BAN AT THE SCHOOL STORE!!
 T: 2 for 1 ichy-ban at the school store!
 Nima runs off stage to get ICHYBAN
 K: No wait, Nima come back- it's just part of our speech
 Nima comes back, with noodles
 T: Anyway, grade 11 was the year when the school slogan actually turned into in Omnibus Excelsior ...we just didn't know what it meant quite yet.
 K: Quite yet? Does anyone know what it means? [cricket sound track, wolves howling]
 N: We started to budget our time more carefully, needing less time in front of the OJ trial to finish our homework...
 K: leaving more times for other things, sports...
 T: girls... (slide of girls)
 N: volunteering...
 T: girls... (slide of girls)
 K: girls... (slide of Ms. Melnychuk)
 N: guys... (slide of Nima and Kent- in a very intimate pose)
 K: Grade 11 was also the year we found out that none of us would be able to attend more than three years of high school without paying dearly, and we learned of the establishment of "Centre High" for all of those rich returnees who, for some reason, were slowed by the defensive line of the third term, near the ten yard line, just before hitting that end zone we call graduation- just using a metaphor off the top of my head that wasn't pointed at any group in particular... (slide of TITANS FOOTBALL jacket)
 N: It's a good thing Centre High won't be having any sports teams, or you could say good-bye to Ainlay's long and prestigious football history...
 T: Yeah, with all of our players with 4 or 5 years of experience, they'd kick our butts!
 N: I'll always remember grade 11 as the year a perverse evil descended upon us.
 K: the automotives hallway?
 N: been there
 T: The cheer team!
 N: Done that. No....I mean...[Macarena starts playing....Nima does the Macarena, Nathan attacks Nima, Kent yells]
 K: If I see any of you guys doing that on grad night YOU'RE DEAD
 N: (whispers) You can't say dead on stage
 K: You won't be living... longer... much... more... oooooh...
 Well grade 11 sure was a good year for me, but grade 12 will probably be the year that most of us will never forget.
 T: We were all sad when we heard the news of the death of a dear old friend... Exit 11. Known better to some of us as...Exit. It was tough for many students to say goodbye, so on lonely days, when the teachers turned their backs, they lit their cigarettes, took a deep breath in, and could be heard discussing solutions to world hunger, or debating the motif of sanity in the works of Shakespeare.

 N: Other than that, we opened the year with a bang. CSLC welcomed over 600 students from across this great land of ours to the greatest school in Western Canada...
 K: [whispers to N] I thought we hosted it.
 N: [whispers back] Play along. [Normal] Many will remember that week for all the great people they met from across the nation, and all of the interesting stuff they learned and saw.
 K: Most people will remember it as the week when they were denied access to the gym because it was filled with a bunch of newbies [slide of misc. Newbie] and French geeks [slide of M. Bonneville and M. Babin], but hey, it was a great week nonetheless.
 T: And all we needed to do to miss a week of school was to pretend we cared about our community. [laughing] We were also visited by premier Klein. Who could forget that!
 N: The mature Alberta students in the crowd kept their boos and hisses to a dull roar.
 K: Apparently Mr. Klein left early though, when he realized that CSLC didn't stand for "Cutting Student's Learning Conditions." And now that Klein has been voted back into power... well, let's see...$650 for books, a couple of hundred for students' union fees, tuition...to a grand total of 400 thousand dollars.
 T: It looks like you're gonna have to settle for Harvard after all, buddy.
 N: In grade 12 we learned that going to class was for chumps.
 T: So we were pretty lucky when the school generously offered us two opportunities a year to skip class, namely Tri-Prov and TVT.
 K: I suppose TVT, Tri-Prov, and CSLC also provided us with Ainlay's best dances too.
 N: Ainlay's only dances, Kent.
 T: This is pretty much how all of them went...
[old-time elevator music starts]
 Nima and Nathan tap toes- bob heads looking really bored
[Self Esteem (mosh type music) comes on]
 Nima and Nathan begin moshing
 K: (In deep Irish accent) Attention students.....This is Mr. McCaughan.....This is a very brief announcement.....Please stop moshing.....FUN can KILL you.....
[old-time elevator music resumes]
 Nima and Nathan tap toes- bob heads looking really bored
 N: Grade 12 has just been one activity after another. Midterms, Tri-Prov, Awar.....
 T: Midterms... oooooh. Picture it. You're sitting in the gym, tense as a basketball player in the IB hallway. The all knowing voice says...
 N: "You may begin"
 T:....and as you open your test, your lungs tighten up. You go blank. You're chokin' baby! - Three years of food studies down the drain!!!
 N: Apparently for others it's just been one disappointment after another!
 K: But we were saved by the prospect of graduation week, and here it finally is. Awards night was a fine Mexican hat dance, and we learned that blackouts are easier to cause than we thought (nudge, nudge). The IB students sure showed their true colors during yesterday's catastrophe, being the only people who actually showed up in the afternoon [Slide of full class of IB students, smiling].
 T: And then, you'll move out into the real world. I'm sure we'll probably see more than a few of you in the papers, or on TV...
 N: ...or on wanted posters, or the back of a milk carton.
 K: Thirty, forty, fifty years from now, you'll be sitting in your EZ chair watching the OJ Simpson appeal and you'll look back on the fond memories.
 N: As we all move onto bigger and better things, the four corners of the rotunda will gradually be replaced by the four corners of the globe.
 (PAUSE)
 K: I suppose now might be a good time to give you that license plate number...
 GGV 174.
 T: AHHHHHHH! Why didn't you tell me!!! [runs off stage]
 K: No, wait! We're not finished yet! [runs off after him....Nathan left alone. Lights go off]
 N: (pathetically) ohhhh.... [in the dark]
[Celebrate Good Times comes on while slides play]

So here they are, those infamous candid photos from grad night that you've all been dying to see. All our years of schooling in the finer points of partying culminated into one evening that hopefully, if we even remembered anything the next morning, we will remember for the rest of our lives. As we head off to university, or college, or the work force, (read: wilder parties) one comforting thought might be that unless your going into engineering, you can fondly kiss all (if even remote) knowledge of Physics and Conics goodbye! :) Just think, no more creative excuses for missing a class on a sunny day - profs don't care - (so many hours of practicing your mother's signature, no longer of use!) and bathrms with actual....real....paper towels! Although we may only remember the the things about Ainlay that bothered us (I'm sure I don't have to mention the lack of win-dows), take a look at the pictures on these pages to remember some of the things that made our years at Ainlaymemorable.
